Interview: Malcolm McDowell Talks 'Silent Hill: Revelation 3D' and 'Vamps'

Tue., May. 17, 2011 12:00 AM PDT , by Joseph McCabe

Man, when I'm pushing sixty-two, I only hope that I'm half as busy as Malcolm McDowell. IMDB lists no fewer than thirteen (!) upcoming films to star the English thespian – a few of which are of special interest to genre fans, including the horror-comedy Vamps (marking the Clueless team's – Amy Heckerling and Alicia Silverstone – return to the screen) and Silent Hill: Revelation 3D, the second film adapting the hit video game saga. Last week I spoke with McDowell while he was promoting the fortieth anniversary Blu-ray and DVD of his most acclaimed film A Clockwork Orange. (We'll have that video interview up soon.) But I also made sure to ask him about his latest projects. Find out what he had to say after the jump.

You have a couple of upcoming films that we're looking forward to. Do you mind if I ask you about them?

No, please. What are they?

One is Vamps...

Great!

Can you talk about your role in that film?

I play Vlad the Impaler -- vith an accent like zis. I'm in scenes with Richard Lewis, who I love. A great comedian, but he's an actor in this and he's very good. He plays a lawyer. Very crisp. It's Alicia Silverstone and Sigourney Weaver, a great cast. Amy Heckerling is fabulous, a terrific writer and a lovely person, and I'm sure the movie's gonna be good. Although I haven't seen it, so I can't vouch for that totally. But my bet would be on her.

How about Silent Hill: Revelation 3D? Can you talk a little about that?

I enjoyed that very much. It's part 2 of Silent Hill and all that. I just really did one major piece in it. I play this weird guy who's blind in a prison cell, with a chain. Scary. It was fun to do. I loved doing it. I just went in for a week, did it, and "Bye bye." I'm sure it'll be good, because this is one of the better ones of that genre of movie. So I think it'll be good.
